The Bound Girl.

"I'll have to do everything alone!"

Little Janet Rae stood with arms akimbo, and looked about the great Mason kitchen. She was nearly twenty, but under-sized. She had but one beauty—her pretty curly head. She was Mrs. Titus Mason's bound-girl—bound to work for that lady until she was one-and-twenty. Such were the terms of the contract when Janet had been taken from the orphan asylum, a tiny creature of ten, nine years before; and it was the hard work and scant fare which had prevented her growing.

There she stood, looking about her at the array of cooking utensils, the rows of milk-pans, the pile of wash-tubs, the shelf of flat-irons, the capacious wood-boxes.

That morning Mrs. Titus, the authoritative, the energetic, had fallen down the cellar-stairs and broken her leg. The doctor had been called, and set it; Mrs. Titus had a nap, and then lifted up her voice and proved herself equal to the situation:

"I'm laid up for a month, Janet—that's plain to be seen. I've done everything for you; now you must take right hold and go on without me. There'll be the cookin' to do and the butter to make more than you have done, extra. But you can do it, if you try. You'll have to, anyway. Hayin's over, and Mr. Dent 'll be goin' home soon, so that'll be one less to provide for."

Janet heard in silence. She gave Mrs. Titus her valiant, and then went away, and stood looking around the kitchen.

"I'll have to do everything alone!" There was such a large family, and so much work to be done, no wonder little Janet shrank; but she never thought of shirking. With breakfast at five o'clock and supper dishes to be washed at eight, she had always had enough to do; but to undertake all the active duties which Mrs. Titus had been accustomed to perform, was almost appalling.

Janet stood thinking how it was to be done. She was such a little thing. It took so many of her armfuls to fill the wood-boxes with hard and soft wood. She must needs stand on a box to work at the tubs on the wash-bench; and her arms grew so tired at the churning. She had been trained to great capability; but she was not strong enough.

But there was no time for reflection. There was supper to get for the four farm-hands, Mrs. Titus' gruel to make and carry up, the milk to strain, the dishes to wash, the wood-boxes to fill, and sponge to be set for bread.

Janet rushed for a pail of water. Mr. Dent was at the well.

Mr. Miles Dent was the summer boarder. He had bought a mill privilege of Mrs. Titus and was building a mill.

He was a handsome, very pleasant man—as perfectly healthy people are apt to be, and he was very large and strong. In age he might have been thirty, or thereabouts.

"Very old, indeed," Janet had pronounced him; and she always had been a little afraid of him, his manners were so nice, and he had such nice books in his room.

Whether he was aware of her existence or not, she was not quite sure. But he seemed to see the hurrying, anxious little creature now—for, saying, "My arms are the strongest," he took the pail, filled it and carried it into the kitchen.

"Have your hands full, haven't you, little one?" he said pleasantly, glancing about him. "Your shoulders hardly look strong enough for all this baking and brewing."

Janet smiled shyly—pleased, surprised; but she was to be ashamed to more than murmur some faint response, and Mr. Dent went away.

But she felt cheered by the friendly words of the big, brown-bearded man; and though Mrs. Titus scolded her because the gruel hadn't milk enough, and she was obliged to go up and down stairs three times before the lady was served, she laid her head upon her pillow more lightly than usual—all for one kind word. Poor little Janet.

It was Mr. Dent. He had not gone. He came swinging along in his shirt sleeves, his linen duster over his arm.

How rich, and prosperous, and happy he was.

Janet did not desire to dispossess Mr. Dent of his good-fortune, but she thought it hard that a little of the brightness of life could not be hers.

But when Mr. Dent came opposite the shed-door, the happy light died out of his pleasant gray eyes.

Well it might. Janet did not dream what a pitiful sight her poor little tear-stained face was.

Mr. Dent spoke cheerily.

"All work and no play makes Jill a dull girl, doesn't it?" he said, taking the basket from her hand and in a moment carrying it, loaded, into the kitchen.

"You have too much to do; the spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak."

When Mr. Dent had filled the big wood boxes so the covers would hardly shut down, he said:

"My arms are strong, and they shall be at your service while I stay here, though it will be only a day or two longer. I shall be quite at leisure tomorrow or next day, and you can call on me whenever you like."

Much as Janet was pleased, she never would have dreamed of taking the gentleman at his word; but the next morning proved a rainy one, so that Mr. Dent's chamber, being cold and no fire lighted in the sitting room, he came into the kitchen with his book and encoined himself in the great rocking-chair beside the stove.

That was the pleasantest day of Janet's life. Mr. Dent told her such funny stories, and read so beautifully from his great book! and then he filled the water-pails, and kept the fire burning, and jumped up to lift the heavy tubs for her, and sat down again to keep the bread from burning, while she carried Mrs. Titus' dinner up.

And while he was doing all this, Mr. Dent was thinking what a dear little patient thing she was, and how prettily the nut-brown hair curled over her head.

At night he filled the boxes with wood, strained the milk, wound the high clock and turned the cats out; and all day he had a jest for every thing, and a genial glance and a kind tone, that turned darkness into light for Janet.

She sighed with happiness as she went to sleep though Mrs. Titus' good-night word had been that "she was a lazy, good-for-nothing thing!" and that she "should be down stairs to-morrow to see what Janet was up to."

The northeast storm continued, and Mr. Dent was sitting by the fire again, when Mrs. Titus limped into the kitchen with a cane.

Now, Mr. Dent had just been chopping mince-meat, with Mrs. Titus' gingham apron and ruffled cap on, and had barely cast them aside, when the lady opened the door and caught Janet laughing.

She might well have looked amazed, for she never had seen Janet laughing before. Now, why she probably could not have told, but Mrs. Titus was very much offended.

She waited until dinner was served, and Janet had gone into the well-room to cool the pudding then she began a bitter tirade:

"Pretty business this is, giggling and fooling your time away, and everything to do! Mr. Dent's been reading poetry to you, has he? How much more churning can you do when you listen to poetry? Have you baked that fruit-cake? Well, I know it's made wrong! Did you shut that sittin' hen off the nest? I don't believe it. What's Mr. Dent in the kitchen for, any way?"

"For the fire, ma'am. The chambers are so chilly. And I had so much to do, and he was kind, and his arms were strong," faltered poor little Janet.

"Umph! Been complaining to Mr. Dent, have you, that you work so hard? Whining, good-for-nothing creature! I wish I'd left you in the asylum. I never thought of you turning out like this—luring men into my kitchen when I'm sick in bed!"

"Stop, Mrs. Titus!" interposed Mr. Dent's heavy voice. "Better not go too far. Janet has told you all there is to tell. I did think she worked too hard. I felt kindly toward her. I have a pair of strong arms which have helped her a little. And they are still at her service. They shall be hers for life if she will. Little Janet, will you accept me for a husband? Many a younger man will not be as tender and true as I, Janet. Will you come, little one?"

And Janet—she looked once with her wide, innocent eyes into the strong, gentle face, then went straight into those extended arms, though Mrs. Titus stood by snuffing the air in scorn.

"Well, I never!" she exclaimed. "To think of it!"

Janet never was scolded again. Those kind, strong arms have been about her ever since. To be sure, she was not educated for a gentleman's wife, but Mr. Dent took her home to the kindest of mothers and sisters, whose influence and tact polished her unobtrusive manners, and soon made her the most elegant of women. The toll-worn little hands are white as snow now; but, better than all, her heart is the happiest that ever beat in a wife's breast.

Wanted Sour-Krout.

"Did I ever tell you about the time that I had the whole army laughing at me for asking for sour-krout in July?" asked Dr.—, who was Gen. Jackson's corps surgeon, of me one day about a year ago, when we were waiting for a train at a little station down in Virginia. 'Twas after we reached Chambersburg, Pa., when Lee invaded the north. At that time, you remember Hunter was in the valley playing the mischiefs with everything and Lee had determined that if he did not stop that sort of thing he would get even on the first town of any importance that came in his way. Well, we heard something just before we got to Chambersburg that made Lee very mad, and he thought that the time for getting even had come. So he sent an officer or two into the town to say that the town council must expect to pay a considerable sum of money, or its equivalent, and they sent back the answer that the members of the council would meet a delegation of officers within two hours or something like that. Our army was in a terrible state; the men wanted shoes, clothing of every kind, provisions and medicines were wanted for the hospital service. So I was sent to say what I wanted, and to see that I got it.

"After the officers had stated their wants, I was called on to read my bill of particulars. I wanted so much quinine, for the men were suffering from malaria and various fevers that required quinine, and I had none. I wanted a great many other things, and did not hesitate to ask for them under the circumstances, and at the end of my list I read out 'ten barrels of sour krout.' In spite of the fact that the members of that town council were not feeling very jolly, every one of them burst out laughing as did our officers. One little old man belonging to the council got up, and asked if I had come there to make fun of them. I replied that nothing was farther from my attention; that the soldiers needed acids very much, and if they did not have any sour krout in town I would take lemons or good pickles. Then the testy little man wanted to know where I was raised.

I told him I was born in Virginia and that I had spent the most of my life in the state, but that I did not see what that had to do with the sour krout. 'Did you ever make any krout?' he asked. I confessed that I had never been guilty of making any of the stuff, and that I did not remember that I had ever seen any of it, but that I had heard we were among the Pennsylvania Dutch, and I thought they would have sour krout if they had anything. The little man put about two years disgust into his face and said: 'If you had ever seen any krout you would not be asking for it in July. I thought everybody knew that it don't never get ripe until late in the fall.' I did not hear the last of that sour krout for more than six months. The story seemed to get all over the south; every new man that I saw me for the next six months wanted to know if I had any sour krout late ly.—Chicago Times.

A Curious Petition.

A petition has just been presented to the French chamber of deputies to which, it is safe to say, no parallel is to be found in the parliamentary records of any country. The petition asks the chamber to provide him with a new face to replace the one he has lost. The request is odd enough as it stands; but its oddity is, if possible, still further enhanced by the fact that the face which he has lost was not his own. Ex-artilleryman Moreau, the petitioner in question is undoubtedly one of the most severely afflicted of the many victims of the Franco-Prussian war. A shell burst immediately in front of him at the battle of Bapaume carrying away the entire surface of his face. Casualties of the sort are doubtless common in war; the peculiarity in Moreau's case is that he survived the terrible mutilation. A grateful country provided him with an artificial face or mask which partly hid the deformity. But his troubles were not over. He was attacked with brain fever the other day sent to a military hospital. In one of his struggles with the attendants his artificial face and teeth got so badly damaged that they have been almost useless to him ever since. The chamber certainly owes the best face that is to be had for money to this gallant defender of his country.—St. James Gazette.

A Man as Strong as an Ox.

Louisville comes to the front again with the strongest man in the country. His name is John Bernhardt, but he resembles the divine Sarah in name only, though he is a native of Alsace, in the south of France. Bernhardt is a new comer to Louisville and is employed in the foundry department of a down town factory, where his feats of strength are daily exhibited to the astonishment of his fellow-laborers. He is twenty-seven years old, six feet four inches high and weighs 256 pounds, and with no surplus flesh. He is not fat, but is the finest specimen of muscular manhood seen here for a long time. A "Post" reporter called in to see him and had a short interview with the brawny Frenchman. He is of megalomantic build, straight as an Indian. His chest is broad and deep and his cheek and chin bones indicate great strength; but his arms are wonderful, and around the biceps they measure seventeen inches. His hands look like bacon hams. His skin is smooth and red, though he never drinks a drop of intoxicating liquor of any kind whatever and was never drunk in his life.

He gave the reporter a few exhibitions of his strength. Taking a piece of iron, which was afterward found to weigh forty-three pounds, Bernhardt held it horizontally at arm's length for several minutes. He then raised a huge piece of block iron from the ground and placed it upon the scales. It pulled eight hundred and sixty-four pounds. Taking a piece of bar iron two inches wide and one inch thick, and placing it against his knees, he bent it double easily. He took hold of a forty-two-gallon barrel of water, and balancing himself against a post, he went through the motion of drinking out of the bung-hole. He took a piece of seasoned oak, about the size of a wagon spoke, and broke it with his hands. He did various other wonderful things which demonstrated the possession of most extraordinary strength.

Bernhardt says he was never in the prize-ring, but says he is not afraid to meet John L. Sullivan or any other man. He professes to be able to fell an ox with his bare fist and often killed hogs in that manner while employed in a Chicago pork-packing establishment. His hands are as hard as wood, and a stroke from one of them would not differ from a stroke of a mallet.—Louisville Evening Post.

Off on a Tour.

"Hi! Hi!" yelled a boy in an alley off Clifford street yesterday.

A second boy, who stood on the crosswalk, mended down and asked what was wanted.

"Put your eye to this knot-hole and tell me what you see."

"Nuthin' but a man sittin' out in the back yard."

"Don't you read the papers?"

"Course I do."

"Didn't you see in the papers three or four days ago that this fellow got married? Name's John Blank."

"Oh, yes."

"And it is said that the happy couple had started on a bridal tour to Omaha."

"Yes."

"Just went as far as Chicago, and headed back fur home. Got here in the night, and walked up to the house to escape observation. The happy couple has got to put in about ten days around here with the front door locked and the curtains down, and some morning you'll see a great stir and learn that they have just arrived after an enjoyable trip. Say, Jim!"

"Yes."

"Don't get married."

"Never!"

"If you ever do, don't try to Omaha the public."

"I won't."

"Cause truth is mighty and must prevail, and deception must sooner or later go to grass."—Detroit Free Press.

"That's Sarah Every Time."

An old man would not believe that he could hear his wife talk a distance of five miles by telephone. His better half was in a country store several miles away, where there was a telephone, and the skeptic was also in a place where there was a similar instrument, and on being told how to operate it, he walked up and shouted:

"Hello, Sarah!"

At that instant lightning struck the telephone wire and knocked the man down, and as he scrambled to his feet, he excitedly cried:

"That's Sarah, every time!"

The Contents of Her Bustle.

Clara Belle relates the following in a letter to the Cincinnati Enquirer: "I went to church last Sunday with just the most sensitively devout girl that breathes the air of this sphere, whence she will arise to the azures and delights of Heaven. She is truly fashionable, too, and her summer costume was a dream of beauty. She ought to have been spiritually composed and religiously happy, but I plainly saw as I watched her through the services, that she was ill at ease."

"What's the matter, dear?" I whispered. "I can't imagine," she said sadly; "but somehow or other I am getting no consolation from the exercises. The rector is as enchanting as ever, the weather is perfect, my own religious experience was comforting, up to the time I sat in this pew. I am positively miserable in my mind. Some occult influence is at work, I'm sure."

"After we got home and were dressing to dress anew for dinner, a sudden exclamation from my friend arrested my attention."

"Clara, Oh, Clara!" she cried, "I've solved the mystery. Look here," and she wiped out a copy of the Police Gazette from her bustle. "That's some of Brother Jack's horrid literature. How blind I must have been! I am so careful always, pretty nearly, to select the Christian Union to put into my bustle when I am going to church. Then I seem, somehow, to get an ease of soul from the services that is due, in some degree, to what I am sitting on. But to rest on a Police Gazette! No wonder the religious exercises went for worse than nothing!"

Sometimes it Does Work That Way.

Only two short years ago, just about this time of day, John Austin Oliver graduated from a famous college in a blaze and bustle of bouquets and a speech that exhausted all the long distance words in the dictionary. One week later he checked his way into the editorial department of a daily paper and had the sublime freshness to ask for a position on the staff. Where is the ambitious collegian to-day? And what is he doing? Driving a dray? Whacking steers on a Texas ranch? Washing rollers in the press room? Well, hardly. He got the place he asked for, stuck to his work like a leech, made his department of the paper hum, and to-day he is managing editor, engaged to the proprietor's daughter and is going to Europe for a five month's vacation. Oh, no, my son; the college graduate doesn't always have to clerk for a hod carrier.

After Mad Dogs.

A few days ago there was something of a mad-dog excitement in the lower end of Illinois. Some one had seen a mad dog, or heard that one was loose, and farmers loaded their guns and kept an eye peeled to windward. One of this class had just given employment to a young man from Detroit—a young man who was supposed to be running into consumption. This young man took a deep interest in the mad dog business, and didn't need to be warned that he was expected to make a hero of himself if opportunity offered.

One day, when the excitement was pitched at the highest peg, the farmer above referred to started for Detroit with his team, taking 1 family of five, and leaving the consumptive young man to run the farm and kill the mad dogs. The farmer, however, insisted upon taking the gun along for his own protection, and this turned out to be a bad move. There were two old bear-traps hanging up in the barn, and the consumptive young man got them down, cleaned up the springs, and set them just outside the gate, remarking to himself that he didn't propose to die of hydrophobia without making a fight for it.

The traps remained there all day, yawning and hungering and aching for mad dogs, and soon after dusk the farmer returned. As he drove up to unload the family one of the horses put a foot into one of the traps, and business began to pick right up from that very second. The team reared and plunged and kicked about, and finally started off on a run which didn't end until a toll-gate brought 'em up with a crash. The wagon was demolished, one horse hurt, and some of the children badly bobbed about, while it took two men half an hour to get that trap off the horse's leg.

When the farmer finally reached home it was night. The wind was wailing mournfully. Dark clouds scudded across the sky. It was just the night a farmer would select of all others for taking an idiot by the ear, leading him out behind the hog-pen, and then there stab him repeatedly and fatally with a plow-point.

Origin of "Hail Columbia."

In 1798 "Hail Columbia," appeared. In the conflict between the Federalists and the Republicans, music was made to take a part. The Republicans, at the theatre called for "Ca ira," or the "Marseillaise." The Federalists wanted the "President's March." "Yankee Doodle," or "Stony Point." Feeling ran high. While the factions wrangled the benefit night of a favorite actor drew near. No man knew better than he how to profit by the popular will, and at no time in the whole course of his life, had he so fine a chance of profiting by the popular will as offered him. Politics ruled the hour. The city was full of excited Federalists, who packed the theatre night after night for no other purpose than to shout themselves hoarse over the "President's March." He determined to make use of this fact. He would take the march, find some one to write a few patriotic stanzas to suit, and on the night of his benefit sing them to the house. Some Federalists were consulted, were pleased with the idea, and named Joseph Hopkinson as the man best fitted to write the words. He consented, and in a few hours "Hail Columbia" was produced. The night of the benefit was Wednesday, the 25th of April, and the Gazette announced that the performance would comprise a comedy called "The Italian Monk," the comic opera of "Rosina," "More Sack," an epilogue on the character of Sir John Falstaff, and an entire new song, (written by a citizen of Philadelphia,) to the tune of the "President's March," will be sung by Mr. Fox, accompanied by the full band and a grand chorus.

"Firm united let us be.
Rallying around our liberty;
As a band of brothers joined,
Peace and safety we shall find.

"Long before the curtain rose the house was too small to hold the thousands who clamored to be let in. Those who got in were too excited to wait quietly for the song. At last the comedy ended, and Mr. Fox appeared upon the stage. Every line was loudly applauded, the whole house joined in the chorus, and, when the verse, 'Behold the chief who now commands' was reached the audience rose to its feet and cheered till the building shook to its foundations. Four times the song was encored, was demanded again at the end of the pantomime, and again at the close of the play. A few called for 'Ca ira,' but were quickly put down. The word of 'Hail Columbia' were printed in full in the newspapers of the following day. The Gazette hoped that every lady in the city would practice the music, learn the words, and sing them at the next repetition; then perhaps the two or three French-Americans who remained might feel the charms of patriotism and join in the chorus of the song."

Have a Purpose.

Young man have a purpose in your heart. Now, what is your purpose in life? Is it that, under all circumstances, you will do what you think is right? Or is it to become rich at the expense of principle and right? The first purpose you should have is to care for yourself. Young men nowadays don't; and when the body is wrecked, they hobble through life, making everybody about them miserable. Find out what diet best agrees with you, and adhere to it. Daniel began by abstaining from wine. This would be a good start for you, young man.

Next, take care of your intellect. Study, if you have intellect—there are some young men who don't know whether or not they have any intellect—improve it. Many hard-working men have acquired profound educations by being studious during small intervals of leisure. Get an hour a day if you can get no more. Devote half of it to study of the Bible, and devote the remaining thirty minutes, say between astronomy, botany and geology. Do this one year, and you will be surprised at what you have accomplished.

Then take care of your manners. The manners of Americans are degenerating. There was a time when a young man would not offend a lady by puffing cigar smoke into her face. Now I see it done on the street-cars every day. Imitate the sweetness and gentleness of Daniel. Be affable, suave, courteous and kind. Never utter a thoughtless word that will pain. Start in life with the principle: "I'll be a gentleman, come what will."

Deininger's Ready Reference Tax Receipt Book is growing in public favor. Customers from a distance are beginning to call for it. It is an admitted necessity for every tax-payer who does his business in a practical manner. It is arranged to last for ten years and sells at the low price of 40 cents. Call and see it at the JOURNAL Store.

PHILADELPHIA had its hottest day in five years last Friday. The thermometer registered 102½ in the shade at two o'clock in the afternoon and many people who were on the streets were prostrated by the intense heat and had to be carried to the hospitals or their homes.

JOHN RILEY, of Altoona, is said to be the coming democratic candidate for state treasurer. Mr. Riley has served one term in Congress creditably, has occupied a responsible position in the transportation department of the Pennsylvania railroad and is much respected by his neighbors in Blair county.

TAYLOR, the murderer of his keeper, when a convict in penitentiary, suffered death on the gallows in Philadelphia last Thursday. If ever a criminal deserved to be hung it was him. He had commenced stabbing at fifteen years of age and stabbed seventeen and shot twenty-eight people in the last ten years.

JOHN ROACH, the ship builder of Dolphin fame, made an assignment of all his property last Saturday to protect his creditors and himself. The failure of this well-known head of an important industry in New York throws many men who earned their daily bread in his extensive shops out of employment and is to be regretted. It is said that Mr. Roach's property will fully cover his liabilities, amounting to about $122,217.

A Good Day for Washington.

Saturday was a good day for Washington, because of the appointment of Wm. B. Webb as one of the Commissioners for the district of Columbia.

The plunder of the people of Washington and of the government as well, has been the chief aim of those who have been appointed to administer municipal affairs in Washington. The Cook and the Shepherd reigns are memorable, and when such as ex-Senator West succeeded in the District Commission, there was no reason to expect faithful government. West carpet-bagged Louisiana into the Senate, and logically fell back upon Washington when he had neither State nor constituency to sustain him. West's term expired a day or two ago, and the old political buzzards flocked to the carcass. Ex-Senator Pomeroy made a high bid for the place by proposing to run the Prohibition movement in the interest of the Democrats, but President Cleveland did not hunger for such Democratic victories. He preferred to deserve popular support by selecting honest and competent Commissioners, and he tendered the position to Mr. Webb. As Webb is honest and competent, of course he doesn't want the place, but he has fortunately accepted. His appointment is notice that there is to be business government in Washington municipal affairs hereafter, instead of banded plunderers.—Times.

MR. EDITOR:—I hand you the following from a paper that comes weekly to my address. As will be seen at once, it relates to paying the preacher, and we believe it will do some of the many readers of the JOURNAL good. M.

A Pastor's Salary.
If a man is fit to preach, he is worth wages. If he is worth wages he should receive them with all the business regularity that is demanded and enforced in business life. There is no man in the community who works harder for what he receives than the faithful minister. There is no man—in whose work the community is interested—to whom regular wages, that shall not cost him a thought are so important.

Of what proportionate use can any man be in a pulpit, whose weeks are frittered away in mean cares and petty economies. Every month, or every quarter, on a certain day, every pastor should be sure that there will be placed in his hands, as his just wages, money enough to pay all his expenses. Then, without a sense of special obligation, he can preach the truth with freedom, and prepare for his public ministrations without distraction.

Nothing more cruel to a pastor, or disastrous to his work, can be done than to force upon him a feeling of dependence upon the charities of his flock. He is the creature of a popular whim, and a preacher without influence to those who do not respect him or his office sufficiently to pay him the wages due to a man who devotes his life to them. Manliness cannot live in such a man, except it be a torture—a torture endured simply because there are others who depend upon the charities doled out to him. Good many pastors do not want gifts; they want wages. They need them, and the people owe them; but they take to themselves the credit of benefactors, and place their pastors in an awkward and false position. If Christians do not sufficiently recognize the legitimacy of the pastor's calling to render him fully his wages, and to assist him to maintain his manly independence before the world, they must not blame the world for looking upon him with a contempt that forbids and precludes influence. The world will be quite ready to take the pastor at the valuation of his friends, and the religion he teaches at the price its professors are willing to pay in a business way for its ministry.

Miscellaneous News.

A Little Boy Drowned.
A Blind Horse Backs a Wagon With Four Occupants Into the Canal.

SELENGROVE, July 15.—About 9 o'clock this morning Mr. Benjamin Heiman was driving along the west side of the Pennsylvania canal. His wagon was a covered one and the horse hitched to it was blind. In the vehicle with Mr. Heiman were Josie Oppenheimer, aged 6 years, son of Mr. Sol. Oppenheimer, a small boy named Marx and Mr. Heiman's son. When near the railroad bridge that crosses the canal and Penn's Creek, a short distance from the waste-weir, the animal became frightened by the roar of the water as it rushed over the weir, and backed the wagon and its occupants into the canal, where the water is very deep. Josie Oppenheimer was in the back part of the wagon, and was drowned. The rest of the little party were in the front part of the vehicle, and with much difficulty escaped. The horse was also drowned.

A Distressing Calamity.
Father and Mother Witness the Burning of Their Home, with Six of Their Children.

PITTSBURG, July 17.—Last night about 11 o'clock the residence of John M. Evans, a small two story log hut, three miles from Grayhampton, Clearfield County, was destroyed by fire, and six of his children, ranging in age from 6 to 15 years, were cremated. Evans was awakened by a strange noise, and under the impression that burglars were about, took his gun and went outside to investigate. To his horror he discovered his humble dwelling in flames. He quickly gave the alarm, but before he could reach his children, who were sleeping on the second floor, the roof fell in, and in a few minutes the building was ablaze. His wife and three young children were sleeping on the lower floor and were taken out safely, but the parents were forced to see the others perish. The morning intelligence of a fearful calamity spread rapidly throughout the county and hundreds were soon drawn to the scene. The mangled remains of four of the children, charred and unrecognizable, were gathered up and buried in one coffin. The other two were apparently reduced to ashes as no trace of them could be found. The parents are crazed with grief and the whole community is excited over the affair, which has no precedent in Clearfield County. The father insists that the fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary, and in this opinion others share.

—Deininger's Ready Reference Tax Receipt Book is growing in public favor. Customers from a distance are beginning to call for it. It is an admitted necessity for every taxpayer who does his business in a practical manner. It is arranged to last for ten years and sells at the low price of 40 cents. Call and see it at the JOURNAL Store.

A Queen's Opinion.

J. M. Queen writes from Johnston, W. Va., that he has been severely afflicted for several years, but he was urged to try PERUNA, which he did, and he now feels that he is about over his trouble, and considers it the greatest medicine in the world. He says he has to go or send a distance of fifteen miles to obtain PERUNA, but it will repay him for this.

Ellwood Shalcross, former editor of the Saturday Journal, Wheeling, W. V., says: "Gentlemen: Some time ago I was afflicted with again in my back in the region of the kidneys, and suffered considerably. Having read your advertisement, I went to Logan & Co., of this city, and purchased a bottle of PERUNA, which I took, and it resulted in the complete removal of the pain. I think I can safely recommend it as a superior panacea for pains."

Mr. Aaron Shreffler, Alma, Marion county, Ill., writes: "Dr. S. R. HARTMAN & Co., Columbus, O. Dear Sirs: Myself and wife have taken three bottles of your medicine and received much benefit by the use of them. My wife was troubled with neuralgia, headache and weak stomach. Her headache has not troubled her for the last two weeks, and her stomach is much better. She took only PERUNA. I used both medicines, and my general health is so much improved that I feel like a new man. My stomach is very much better, and the MANALIN keeps my bowels all right. We intend to keep taking the medicines until we are permanently cured."

Evans T. Jones, Prospect, Marion Co., O., says: "After having taken medicine from different physicians of this place without any relief, I was induced to try your PERUNA, which I purchased of Cook Bros., druggists, of this place, and after using some six bottles of the same, I feel very much benefited. Am sure it will finally work an entire cure."

T. J. Ewing, Chattelsburg, Ky., writes: "In the early part of last winter I contracted a severe cold, attended with a bad cough; then, being exposed during late flood, added to my disability. I have taken your PERUNA with good results. My cough has entirely left, soreness is gone, and an increase in flesh. Thomas Bradford, 314 Western Avenue, Allegheny City, Pa., writes: "I have had liver complaint for three years; I thought I would have to quit work; I have taken two bottles of your PERUNA, and am well."

S. Wolfe & Son, Wilmot, Ohio, write: "We handle your goods, and they give good satisfaction."

Washington Newspapers Destroyed by Fire.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Fire broke out this evening in the Post building, at the corner of Tenth and D streets, and the editorial, composing and press rooms of the Washington Post, the National Republican, the Critic, and the Sunday Gazette were completely gutted. Besides these offices the building was tenanted by the United States Electric Light Company, District Gas Inspector, Lee's restaurant, Shorter's barber shop, and Neale's lithographing establishment, all of which were burned out. The building was owned by Stilson Hutchins, and was valued at $30,000. The loss of the building is said to be covered by insurance. The press used by the Post and Republican, valued at $20,000; the Critic press, valued at $15,000, and a press owned by ex-Secretary Chandler valued at $20,000 were destroyed. The plates of Stilson Hutchins' new book, entitled "The National Capitol—Washington, Past and Present," with 5,000 copies of the book, were burned. The total loss will reach $150,000. The fire is believed to have broken out in the engine room of the Electric Light Company. Through the courtesy of the proprietors of the Star, the Post and Republican will be issued from the Star office to-morrow.

From Pole to Pole

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has demonstrated its power of cure for all diseases of the blood.

The Harpooner's Story.
New Bedford, June 7, 1882.
DR. J. C. AYER & Co.—Twenty years ago I was a harpooner in the North Pacific, when five others and myself were laid up with scurvy. Our bodies were bloated, gums swollen and bleeding, teeth loose, purple blotches all over us, and our breath seemed rotten. Like by and large we were pretty badly off. All our lime-juice was accidentally destroyed, but the captain had a couple dozen bottles of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA and gave us that. We recovered in a quicker time than I have ever seen men brought about by any other treatment for scurvy, and I've seen a good deal of it. Seeing no mention in your Almanac of your SARSAPARILLA being good for scurvy, I thought you ought to know of this, and so I tell you the facts.

Respectfully yours, RALPH Y. WINGATE.
The Trooper's Experience.
Marsen, Bantoland (S. Africa), March 7, 1882.
DR. J. C. AYER & Co.—Gentlemen: I have much pleasure in testifying to the great value of your SARSAPARILLA. We have been stationed here for over two years, during which time we had to live in tents. Being under canvas for such a time brought on what is called in this country "typhoid fever." I had those sores on my face and body, and I was very much afflicted for some time. I was advised to take your SARSAPARILLA, two bottles of which made my sores disappear rapidly, and I am now quite well.

Yours truly, T. K. BODEN,
Trooper, Cape Mounted Riflemen.

Will It Pay?

There are some farmers who say, "It will not pay to use Phosphate; it costs too much." Some of these farmers toil year after year on almost barren fields; and hardly raise half a crop of anything. Suppose they would buy a ton or two of Baugh's $25 Phosphate every year, and raise on one acre what they now raise on three, and make their poor land good; get plenty of wheat, rye, grass, straw, manure and the most needful of all, money. Will it pay? Of course it will. There is nothing a farmer can buy that will pay him so well for his investment in so short a time as Phosphate.

I found it a specific for Hay Fever. For ten years I have been a great sufferer from August 9th till frost. Ely's Cream Balm is the only preventive I have ever found.—Frank B. Ainsworth, of F. B. Ainsworth & Co., Publishers, Indianapolis, Ind. 28-4t LAWNSOCIAL.—There will be a Lawn Social under the auspices of the Lutheran Sunday school of Aaronsburg on the lawn in front of Mr. Emanuel Ettinger's residence, on Saturday afternoon and evening, August 28th, 1885. The refreshments will consist of ice-cream, cakes, &c. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

—Persons should particularly avoid throwing decomposing articles, which make an unhealthy stench, into the alleys or streams in the borough. In this kind of weather it is a very dangerous transaction and we were disagreeably surprised to hear that somebody had violated this important rule of health in our own town. The good sanitary condition of the community is at stake in such a case.

—The Millheim band expects to attend the harvest home picnic, in J. C. Smith's woods, near Smithtown, next Saturday a week. We understand that ice cream, lemonade and other delicacies will be served on the grounds. Let us all get ready and spend a pleasant day in the woods. The committee who have the matter in hand have spared no labor to make the programme for the day as attractive as possible.

—Notice is given to the public that Prof. Miles O. Noll, of Lewisburg, will take charge of the Aaronsburg Academy after harvest. A term of TEN weeks will begin on the 27th of July. All grades of scholars will be admitted on reasonable terms. Special attention will be given to those preparing for teaching. The patronage of all desiring the education of their sons and daughters is respectfully solicited.

—H. E. Duck, Esq., of Penn township, has purchased the lot, on Main street, where formerly stood Alexander's store room, from Messrs. Musser & Smith. We are informed that Mr. Duck contemplates erecting a good-sized building on said lot, with a fine storeroom on its first story. We earnestly hope that this may be so, as it will improve that part of Main street wonderfully. Besides that, we gladly welcome Squire Duck as a freholder and citizen of our borough.

LAY THEM AWAY.—We mean the horrible, nauseous worm-seed compounds called worm syrups and vermifuges; many of them as worthless as they are obnoxious. They have outlived their usefulness. People do not want them since McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders, so easy and pleasant to take, can be had from any dealer. Everyone who has tried them say they are the nicest and best vermifuges ever discovered. The children take them and never know a medicine is being administered. Any case of failure to cause expulsion where worms exist the money promptly refunded in every instance.

THE LUTHERANS' DAY.—On Sunday morning early the Lutherans of Millheim and immediate vicinity were awakened by the ringing of their bell, reminding them that a day of religious services had dawned for them. And it was a clear and bright Sunday morning, the glorious rays of the midsummer sun inspiring the churchgoing people with happiness. After Sunday school from 9 to 10, a. m. the spacious auditorium of the Lutheran church soon filled up with the large crowd of people who had assembled from all directions to witness the installation of Rev. M. L. Dietzler as pastor of the Aaronsburg charge. The choir opened services with an appropriate anthem. Rev. W. E. Fisher then preached a masterly sermon from 2 Timothy, IV: 2—"Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine." The gentleman possesses a rare combination of qualities, which make his discourse patently pleasing to his hearers. He is a man of learning, a fine orator and an earnest and outspoken minister, and his text was analyzed in the most pointed and effective manner. This sermon was principally directed to the new pastor and was indorsed with emphasis by Rev. Divens who followed in a brief address of exhortation and instruction. The installation ceremonies were next in order after which the large congregation was dismissed. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon a children's meeting was held, when Revs. Fisher and Divens addressed the little and big children, interspersed by prayer and singing. The work of the day was capped in the evening by a splendid discourse on "And he brought him to Jesus," from St John I: 42, by Rev. Divens. That gentleman gave some sharp and well-directed admonitions practically applying the words of the text to the professing christian of the present day and his remarks were eagerly received by the attentive people.

The church on this occasion was again filled to its utmost capacity and all went to their homes satisfied that their knowledge of scripture was increased and their hearts and minds enlightened with gospel truth.

WHAT WE ARE INDEBTED TO THE SOUTH FOR.—There appears in our columns to-day the advertisement of the well-known (and universally used in the Southern States) Simmons Liver Regulator. Years ago it won its way into every household of the South by pure, sterling merit. It there takes the place of a doctor and costly prescriptions. The medicine is becoming widely known in the North, and wherever used the demand for it has steadily increased. It is a family medicine, containing no dangerous and deleterious qualities, but purely vegetable, and so gentle in its action that it can be safely given to any person, no matter what age—the centennarian; of the crowing youngster. Working people are often in that miserable state of health which really renders them unfit for labor; but they haven't time to take medicine and be sick. Simmons Liver Regulator can be taken without causing any loss of time, and the system will be built up and invigorated by it. The Regulator promotes digestion, dissipates nasty sick headache, and gives a strong, full tone to the system. In malarial climate it is invaluable, both protecting attack from the disease and expelling the poison after it has entered the system. It has no equal as a preparatory medicine, and can be safely used when a doctor cannot be called in. Persons of the very highest character and eminence have given Simmons Liver Regulator their cordial and hearty endorsement.

IT WENT ROUND AMONG THE NEIGHBORS.—Mr. Levi Stahl, merchant and postmaster at Fostoria, Pa., writes:

"Mr. J. A. McDonald, Reedsville, Pa. DEAR SIR.—Some time ago I had a severe attack of chronic diarrhoea. Could obtain no relief. A friend gave me a part of a bottle of your Curtis' Carmelite Cordial, and a few doses entirely cured me. The balance of the bottle went around among the neighbors. Since then I have written to New York and Philadelphia for the medicine but could not procure it. I traced up the bottle we had and found it was purchased of Mr. Jacob Cowan, merchant in Altoona, and from him obtained your address. Please forward me one dozen bottles by express at once, as I do not wish to be without it in my family and wish to sell it to my store."

"Single bottle Curtis' Carmelite Cordial guaranteed to cure any case cholera, dysentery, diarrhoea, cramps, pains, and all irritation of the bowels incident to change of climate, diet or water."

A Tale of a Tunnel.

A newly married couple were en route to Washington by the Baltimore & Ohio. There are many tunnels on this road the other side of the Ohio river. All through Ohio the face of the young man were occasional looks of pain, despite his great joy. He seemed to want something. Apparently he yearned. Over in West Virginia the train entered a tunnel. Upon emerging into the light the young man's face was seen to wear a staid expression. He was thinking. At first he seemed perplexed, then interested, then triumphant. He had had a revelation. Then he smiled with a firm, manly, continuous smile, and his eyes peered ahead for the first sign of a yawning cavern in the mountain side. The bride was happy and demure. Whisk—shadows—rumble—darkness. The veil is drawn. It is another tunnel. Light again, and the young man looks happier than ever. The bride's cheek disports a gentle blush—a modest, experienced blush, discoverable only to the initiated and envious. No perplexity, no anxiety now. The revelation has been tested and found a success. There are many tunnels, but not enough. If the whole line were a tunnel the bride and groom would not care how slow the train proceeded. The man who has not lived to know what happiness is. He is but little above the brute which never troubled the Creator for passing clouds over the moon on prayer meeting night. But our bridegroom was not one of these parties. He appreciated all the blessings which man and nature had bestowed upon him. He did not miss a tunnel.

But all things must have an end. Daylight always comes to the newly married. Strawberries and cream must be paid for at the cashier's desk. With in the blissful cucumber hides a microbe. Our young husband goes for a drink of water. While on this errand his eager eye catches the signs of another tunnel. Of course he fears his bride will be sore afraid if left alone in the darkness, and he hastens to her side. Quick are his feet, but faster moves the train. Darkness gathers while he is not yet half a dozen seats away. But the brave man does not falter. He gropes along, he reaches the seat (or thinks he does) and slides into it. Deep are the shadows, and hums the train.

A scream, long and vigorous—a sound of scuffling—a thump or two—and the bright light of a May day breaks upon the scene. The young husband frantically endeavors to disengage himself from the grasp of an angry colored woman sitting in the seat just behind the bride. He at length succeeds and retires sullenly to his seat. The tunnels come and go, but their shadows are scarcely deeper than those upon the face of the young honeymoon. —Chicago Herald.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.
Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN'S TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, teething troubles, soothes inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children's Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

The invention of lithography is ascribed to a German named Senefelder, who lived in Munich. The invention was made between the years 1796 and 1798. Like some other inventions, it was partly the result of chance. Senefelder was a very poor man, and was trying to discover some method of improving plate printing. Not being able to purchase plates of copper, he used smooth slabs of stone. Being ignorant of the composition of the varnish used by engravers for their etching ground, he invented a kind of crayon composed of wax and tallow. One day his mother wished him to write out a list of clothes to be sent to the laundress. Paper and ink not being at hand, he wrote the list upon a stone with his crayon. When he was about to clean off the stone, it occurred to him that the body of the stone could be eaten down by ac-vuafortis, leaving the written lines in relief, so that printed impressions could be taken from them. His experiments in this line were partially successful, and subsequent discoveries enabled him to bring printing on stone to such a degree of success as established the art lithography.

QUAKER

Is the Best

TABLE SAUCE.

Thousands of articles are now manufactured that in former years had to be imported, paying high import duty as it is now being done on Lea & Perrin's table sauce, the QUAKER TABLE SAUCE takes its place; it has been pronounced by competent judges just as good and even better. Quaker Sauce has slowly but surely gained great importance and is replacing the very best imported sauce on the shelf of the grocer, the tables of the restaurant and the tables of the rich and poor men, greatly prized and relished by all on account of its purity, aroma, taste, strength and pureness. The inventor has by years of study of the secret virtues contained in the aromatic spices of the Indies and China, such as mace, nutmeg, cinnamon, genuine Jamaica ginger, and peppers and oils of trees unknown to most men, and by long practice succeeded to combine their extracts in such a liquid form as we now find it, of agreeable taste, and so invigorating as to be taken in place of stomach bitters. By manufacturing this sauce here, heavy import duties and freights are saved, and it is sold at a lower figure to the dealer, who makes a better profit on Quaker Sauce he sells it to the consumer cheaper than the very best imported article hardly equaling it. If your grocer does not keep it, write for prices, etc. Sold in bottles or by the gallon.

DOWN'S' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWN'S'
Vegetable Balm
ELIXIR
For the cure of
Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that it is not a humbug, if properly attended to. At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs, then an inflammation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflammation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration, and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and stimulating articles, which are often drying a nature so as to be a great danger of destroying the patient, whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.
Price 50 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.
SOLD EVERYWHERE.
